website costs

Determining how much a website should cost is one of the most frequently asked but rarely answered questions in the web design world.

Even now, with millions of websites online, there exists no magic formula for calculating either the cost of a new website or the cost of a redesign.

MyNew Technologies consists of a team of designers, developers and SEO marketing specialist.

When a prospective client navigates to your website for the first time, those first few seconds are just as important as an initial telephone call or meeting.

Websites that are outdated or boring may have a negative effect on the client, greatly reducing your chances of securing their business. An up-to-date website proves that you invest in your company and leaves the right kind of first impression.

We provide complete web development services. From the smallest web presence to a full content-management system, MyNew Technologies brings the experience, tools and ingenuity necessary to make it happen.

Let us meet your business internet needs. We offer your business a no-risk challenge.
